The gorgeous island of Mykonos is mesmerising, upmarket, beautiful and generally has a lot to boast about. Its picturesque, whitewashed villages, beautiful beaches, upscale dining and party scenes, trendy beach clubs and Instagrammable chapels and churches draw crowds of tourists looking for a fun time in a fabulous setting.

Mykonos Town's pretty area of Little Venice hugs the turquoise waterside and is brimming with art galleries, buzzy bars, cute little souvenir shops and pastel-coloured houses. Visitors flock with their cameras to photograph the glorious sun going down and enjoy a few early evening drinks at the chic bars hugging the waterside. Mykonos Town is buzzy, picturesque and charming with narrow, cobbled lanes lined with cosy cafes and unique shops. Matogliani Street is brimming with label-laden designer boutiques and sparkling jewellery shops. Gourmet restaurants offer an enviable dining scene. The island's famous, picture-postcard windmills rest on the hillside close to the beautiful whitewashed Paraportiani Church. The church is actually comprised of five churches and various architectural features.

The pretty and popular Ano Mera village enjoys a traditional, rustic-chic vibe. It is especially popular for Sunday brunch and its local produce market. The beautiful, restored Panagia Tourlaina Monastery sits just off the square and is atmospheric and stunning.

Paradise Beach Club has won awards for being one of the best clubs worldwide and has attracted the likes of Tiesto to play exclusive and massive sets. It is an all-day party destination and celebrates 50 years of history. Mykonos has been extremely popular since the Fifties and Sixties when stars of the day such as Brigitte Bardot and Jackie Onassis fell in love with it. The hippies then fell for its charms.

Next door to Paradise Beach is the lovely Paraga Beach which boasts amazing views of the island of Delos as well as gorgeous fine sand and lively restaurants and bars. The organised sunbeds and parasols and beach bars create a gorgeous summer scene.
