Location & Local Information

Surrounded by the Atlantic Ocean off the coast of Morroco sits the island of Madeira. At 35 miles long and 13 miles wide, the island is definitely not the largest found this side of the Atlantic, but it enjoys a privileged position with a mild year-round climate making it a popular holiday destination.

Villa do Suprema can be found on the south coast of Madeira in the town of Ponta do Sol. Translated into English as the 'Point of Sun', it is rumoured that this town receives more sunshine than anywhere else on the island! The town is a popular spot to enjoy seafood thanks to its restaurants serving a range of delicacies, from muscles to Madeira's famed Espada or black scabbardfish, making this town a seafood lovers paradise. Like many of the other beaches across Maderia, Praia da Ponta do Sol is home to deep black shores thanks to the island's volcanic rock, making going to the beach a somewhat unique experience!

Around a 30-minute drive east of Ponta do Sol you will arrive at Funchal, Madeira's capital city. Funchal's Old Town is always popular with visitors thanks to the number of sights, restaurants and bars in the area. The main shopping streets of Rua do Aljube, Rua da Carreira and Rua Dr Fernao Ornelas are great for a bit of retail therapy. Or if you are looking to learn more about the history and culture of the city, then the Cathedral of Funchal is certainly a place to visit. Built during the peak of Portuguese power in the 16th century, the cathedral was built to be a symbol of Portuguese power and prosperity. In particular, the altarpiece at the cathedral is simply stunning; with gilt woodwork, small sculptures and oil painting, it really is a sight to behold.

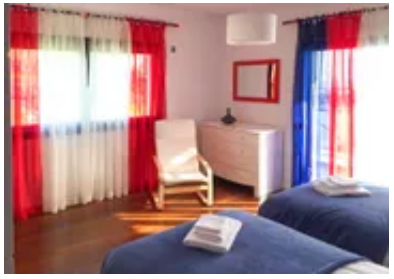

Travelling west from Villa do Suprema and you reach the town of Ponta do Pargo on the western tip of Madeira. Known for its striking high cliffs and strategically positioned lighthouse, this majestic town is a beautiful place to visit. From the town, you can visit the magnificent Gardanta Funda Waterfall. Accessed via walking trails from Ponta do Pargo, this waterfall is simply stunning and offers a wonderful viewpoint from which visitors can admire the views of the surrounding cliffs and the Atlantic Ocean beyond.

If you enjoying hiking, then a trip up Pico Ruivo is a must-do whilst visiting Madeira. At 1,862 metres high, this extinct volcano is the highest peak in Madeira and offers spectacular views from the top - if you are lucky enough to reach it on a clear day. One of the most popular paths starts at Achada do Teixeria. Taking around an hour and a half and with a climb of 300 metres, this hike takes walkers through stunning trails through the hillside. And when you reach the top, the effort will certainly be worth it!
