

Tarbert Country Manor

Region: Argyll Sleeps: 17

Overview

Tarbert Country Manor holds a magnificent position on the shores of West Loch Tarbert. With stunning views over the loch to Kintyre and the hills of Arran, the Manor is the perfect retreat for those looking for a peaceful countryside escape.

The turreted 19th century baronial mansion has been lovingly modernised and combines its original charm and character with updated interiors and all the modern amenities guests could possibly need, including pool table, cinema room, and Wi-Fi throughout. Tarbert Country Manor can comfortably accommodate up to seventeen guests across its nine well-appointed bedrooms, making it a fantastic setting for a special celebration or family reunion.

On the ground floor is the main living accommodation which offers multiple spaces for relaxing and socialising, including a sitting room, dining room, library, study and a large, fully-equipped kitchen with separate dining area. Upstairs are the nine bedrooms, one Emperor, three king-size rooms, one double, a triple and a twin as well as two single rooms. Three of the bedrooms boast en-suite facilities, while the final bedrooms share the use of two large family bathrooms.

Outside, guests can explore the estate, with its spacious well-tended gardens, oak woods and walled garden, as well as the private pebble beach and foreshore.

While guests will enjoy being away from the hustle and bustle, the village of Tarbert with its shops, restaurants and pubs, is just a fifteen-minute drive away, and there is plenty to explore in the vicinity of the manor.
