Location & Local Information

A large island lined with endless beaches and attractive towns and villages, Krk is one of the highlights of northern Croatia. You can fly straight into Rijeka Airport and discover the wonders of Krk in no time, as this international airport is located on the island itself.

Beautiful Baška is well known and loved for its stunning beaches and pretty Old Town. A number of interesting churches are found around the area, including the 11th-century Church of St John the Baptist, Church of the Holy Trinity and St Lucy's Church in the village of Jurandvor. It was here that the 'Baška Tablet' was found, which contained the first reference to a Croatian king in the Croatian language. While the original artefact is now on display in Zagreb, the church has a replica to view and a video presentation with further details.

Krk Town is an easy day trip from Baška, and its seafront promenade's many cafés and bars are sure to be busy. The historic centre is a pleasing jumble of alleys, fortified walls and notable landmarks. The Frankopan Castle offers a fine sea view from its 12th-century tower and is one of the town's most-visited sights. Add the white stone St Quirinus' Church and Romanesque Cathedral of the Assumption to your itinerary, and be sure to stop for a drink at the Volsonis bar which has an unusual USP – it's in a cave.

There are some lovely beaches within reach of Krk Town, or you could take a walk or bike ride along the verdant Prniba peninsula. Elsewhere on the island, you can find charming locations such as Vrbnik – a centre for local wine production and a wonderful place to dine with a view over the Adriatic – and the charming resort of Maslinska. This former fishing village impresses with its lengthy waterfront, pretty harbour and beautiful surroundings.

Many of the isle's notable landmarks enjoy a sea view, so head to the coast to see the Glavotok Monastery, on the western side of Krk, or the Fulfinum Mirine archaeological park, further north near Omišalj. A trip across the water to Rijeka is also rewarding. This large city is the region's place for shopping and culture, as well as the imposing 13th-century Trsat Castle.
