What we love

- We're both foodies, and the food here is a real mix of European, African and Caribbean. A lot of dishes contained conch, which is a large marine snail, something we'd never tried before, but that was really delicious. We especially loved cracked conch, fish stew and conch fritters.
- You really can't describe how spellbindingly blue the water is here until you see it for yourself. Waking up by the water is unbeatable.
- We visited in February and were lucky enough to see humpback whales which was unforgettable.
- We spent much of our time by the pool and the beach and wouldn't have spent it any other way. Relaxing on the terrace with a glass of wine was my happy place.

What you should know...

- The islands accept US dollars, so make sure you have your money sorted. ATMs are plentiful on the island, but it's always a good idea to carry some cash for smaller establishments.
- Check the visa entry requirements before you book your trip to ensure that all runs smoothly.
- Bring the bug spray! As with all tropical islands, mosquitoes like the beguiling beauty too. Bring a spray with 50% Deet to ward off any critters.
- If visiting during the peak season, make sure you make advance reservations for areas of interest to avoid disappointment.
- Wymara Resort is cashless, none of the outlets will accept cash, only card payments.
