Overview

Located in the foothills of the Sierra Blanca, outside Marbella, Villa Moderna is a striking modern mansion that offers an exceptional living experience. Designed by renowned architect Joaquin Torres, this contemporary villa features a sophisticated and eco-conscious design, with multiple terraces that provide stunning panoramic views of the surrounding landscape and the sea.

The villa is spread over several levels, surrounded by lush greenery, offering a secluded and peaceful atmosphere. The sleek facade, punctuated by expansive openings, seamlessly connects the interior with the outdoor spaces. The decor is minimalist yet elegant, with refined furnishings and playful touches, such as colorful artwork and unique lighting. The spacious ground-floor kitchen boasts high-end appliances and a long central counter, while the adjoining dining room provides ample space for guests. A luxurious living room features large windows framing breathtaking views of the terrace and surrounding nature.

Stepping outside, the expansive terrace is home to a spectacular infinity pool that seemingly merges with the forest below. Multiple seating areas provide shaded spots for alfresco dining, and stylish loungers invite you to relax by the pool. As evening falls, guests can enjoy a meal on the terrace, unwind in the hot tub, or retreat to the state-of-the-art home cinema for a cozy night in.

The villa has eight bedrooms, six of which have en-suite bathrooms. The other two bedrooms are in a private guest apartment, and share a bathroom. Each room is thoughtfully furnished, with floor-to-ceiling windows that bring in plenty of light, while many rooms open to additional terraces with serene views.

For fitness and relaxation, there's a gym, spa area with sauna and steam room, and even a private tennis court. An indoor beauty salon completes this luxurious property. At the heart of the villa is 'The Pulse,' a striking 15-meter steel sculpture by Anne Quinze, connecting the home's levels with its artistic presence.
