Location & Local Information

Maison L'Oustaloun is well-situated in a quiet, central area of a small, family-friendly resort town on the French Riviera between Cannes and Saint Tropez. The local area offers a range of shops, grocery stores, boutiques, restaurants, bars, and fantastic bakeries serving local delights such as La Tarte Tropézienne – invented by patisserie owner Alexandre Micha in 1955 for the actress Brigitte Bardot.

The nearest beach to the villa is reachable in under five minutes by car. While most of the beaches in the region are pebbled, many of the beaches close to Maison L'Oustaloun are perfectly sandy.

The resort's numerous small coves and beaches are rich in opportunities for fun activities and new experiences, including scuba diving, snorkelling, jet skiing, sailboat excursions, windsurfing, fishing, or taking a scenic hike along one of the many coastal paths. One of these hikes is named the 'Chemin des Douaniers', which runs for 12km from Saint-Aygulf to the San Peire Beach at Les Issambres.

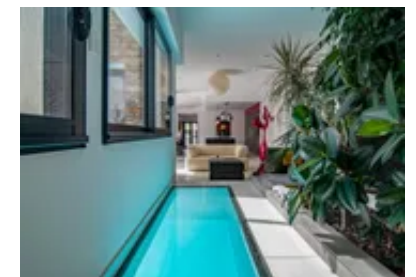

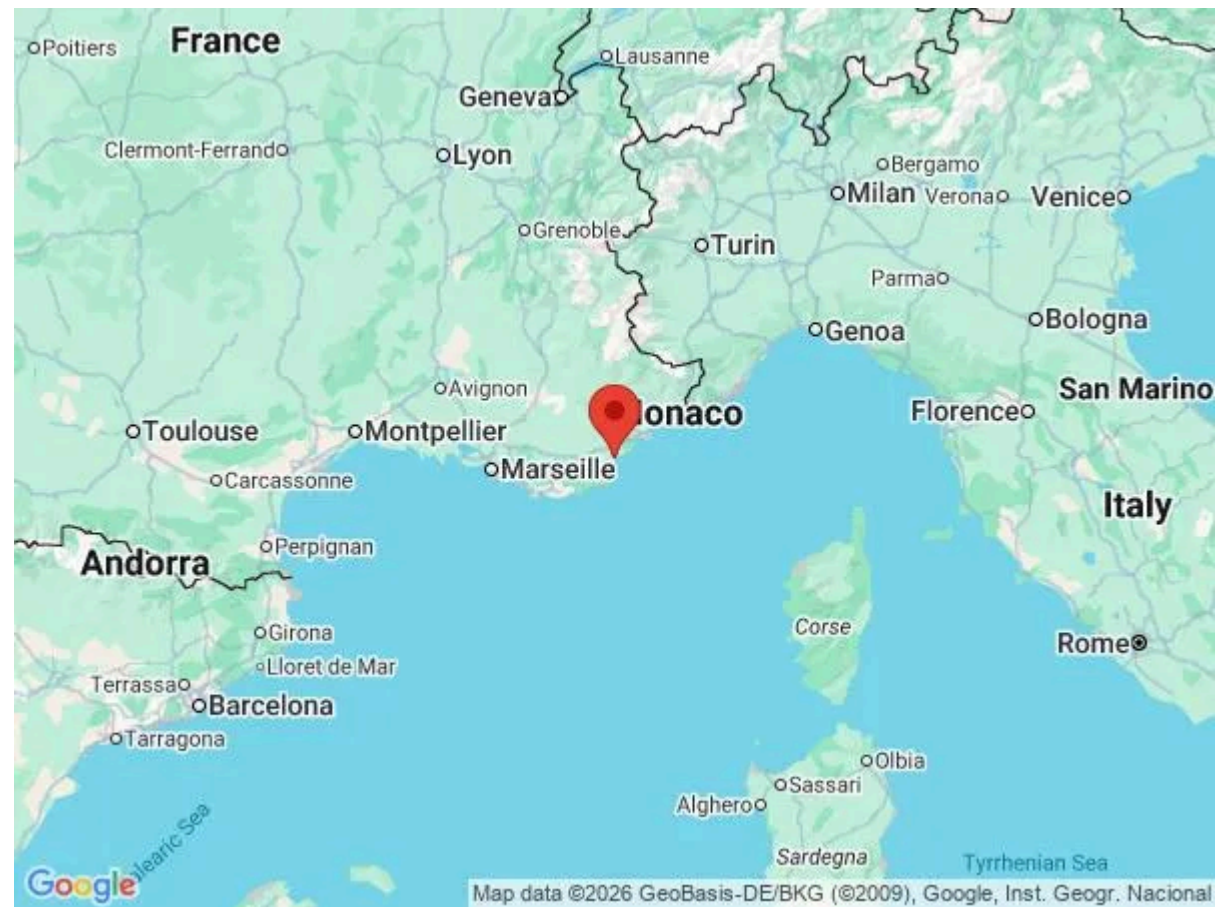

For history buffs there is also opportunity to check out interesting Roman sites, including La Gaillarde, a large ornamental Roman fishpond built approximately 2,000 years ago.

Larger resort towns and hotspots along the Côte d'Azur are within easy driving distance too, including the historic town of Fréjus, Saint-Raphael, Saint Tropez, and Cannes.

For the wine lovers amongst us, the beautiful vineyards of Château Vaudois are less than ten minutes away by car. Situated on a high Provençal hillside, this prestigious winery offers guided tours and tastings that will steep you in the local terroir.
