Location & Local Information

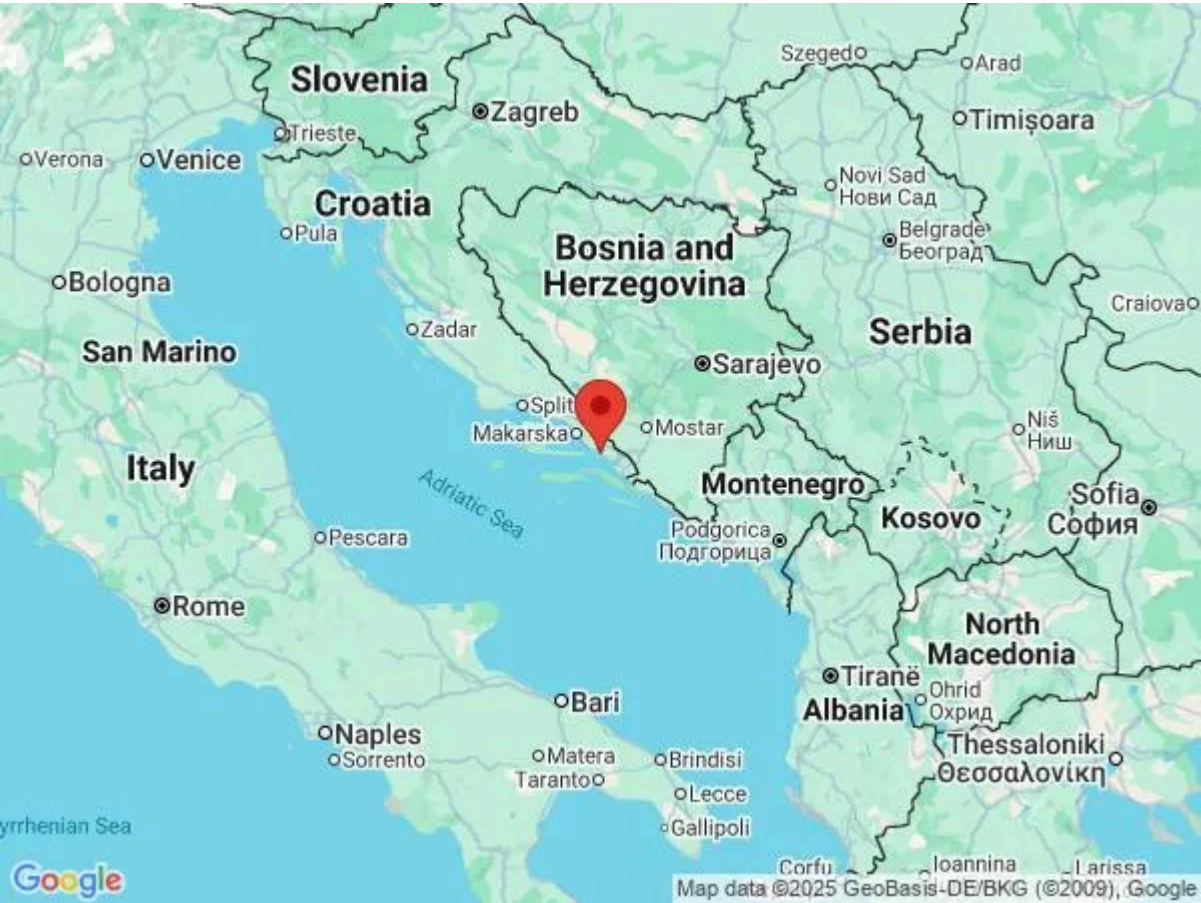

Set like a gem just north of the charming seaside resort of Podaca, Villa Gisou is ideally situated to enjoy the glory of this famous coastline. Surrounded by the crystalline waters of the Adriatic Sea, Podaca beckons with its pristine pebble beaches, inviting travellers to bask in the Mediterranean sun. A stroll along the charming seaside promenade reveals an array of supermarkets, quaint cafes and local eateries where you can savour the rich flavours of Dalmatian cuisine.

A 30-minute drive from the villa brings guests to the seaside resort town of Makarska (which gives this stretch of coastline between Split and Dubrovnik its name). Over the years, Makarska has been occupied by the Romans, Ottomans, Venetians, French and Viennese, all of whom were undoubtedly attracted by the port's half-moon bay.

Make sure to check out the Biokovo Nature Reserve, which rises precipitously above the Makarska Riviera. The unspoiled heights can be explored easily on foot but benefit from a guided tour. With the Dalmatian coastline spread out below, Croatia's second-highest summit offers unbeatable views and a variety of flora and fauna.
