Location & Local Information

The westernmost island of the Dodecanese, Astypalaia, is unmistakably Greek, with its whitewashed villages, azure waters and sun-drenched beaches. Shaped by a narrow isthmus dividing its two main sections, the island is often referred to as "The Butterfly Isle". Elsie Suite is ideally located in the western region, known as Mesa Nisi, within the island's capital, Astypalea.

Astypalaia caters well to visitors, offering a range of amenities including bars, restaurants, cafés, supermarkets, museums, beaches and inviting swimming spots.

One of the most picturesque towns in the Aegean, Astypalea is perched on a promontory that extends into the sea, forming two beautiful bays. Overlooking it all is Astypalea Castle, a Venetian fortress built by John Querini in the early thirteenth century as protection from pirates.

The eight traditional windmills lining the path to the castle are a charming feature. Located on the saddle of the hill, each has a rotating roof as well as turning sails.

The Archaeological Museum of Astypalaia showcases artefacts from various periods, spanning from the Prehistoric era to the Middle Ages.

Another highlight is Drakos Cave, adorned with vibrant stalactites and stalagmites. The cave is steeped in legend, believed to have once hidden pirate treasure.

What we love

- Sumptuous interiors offer bright and cosy nooks and spaces throughout the villa, ensuring every aspect of your vacation is relaxed and light-filled.
- The villa's terraces are as serene as they are spectacular. Scaling up the exterior of the villa like the interior floors, the terraces boast sun beds, al fresco dining settings, a plunge pool and even a jacuzzi.
- The Butterfly of the Aegean, Astypalaia, is one of Greece's secret gems - a breathtakingly beautiful island that still benefits from being relatively untouristed. Thankfully that doesn't mean there's a lack of amazing dining experiences, activities and attractions.

What you should know...

- The plunge pool is unfenced so be aware of children at play.
