Location & Local Information

Well-situated in the picturesque town of Monforte d'Alba, Villa Muna is in the heart of The Langhe, a region famous for its wines, cheeses, and truffles. Made a UNESCO World Heritage Site in 2014, the Langhe and its hills are a spectacular destination for wine lovers, foodies, hikers, and cyclists. The region is particularly famed for its Barolo and Barbaresco wine varieties.

Monforte d'Alba is the perfect base from which to taste and explore Piedmont, but it is also a delightful spot in and of itself, especially for wine lovers and foodies. Grappolo d'Oro is a restaurant on the main piazza that is the perfect place for a long lunch or a leisurely dinner. Similarly, Le Case della Saracca, a restaurant carved into the hill with caverns for rooms and a marvellous wine collection. Of course, there is also the Michelin starred Marc Lanteri Restaurant located in the stunning Castello di Grinzane Cavour.

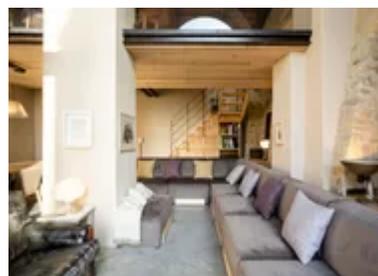

Just outside of Monforte are the world-famous rolling hills of Barolo where world-class hiking takes place between vineyards. So put on your hiking boots or your tasting hat, or both, and head out to explore the local vineyards. There's Simone Scaletta (6-minute drive), one of the few biodynamic vineyards in the region, and others in easy reach are Cantina La Briacca winery (4-minute drive), Pecchenino societa Agricola (6-minute drive), and Azienda Agricola Abbona Marziano (8-minute drive). Which is to say there's no shortage, so take your pick!

Turin (60-minute drive) is the closest major city and certainly worth the visit. Boasting grand boulevards, classical ruins, world-leading museums, and grand cafes, the capital of Piedmont is like a niche, Italian version of Paris. After visiting some of the main squares like Piazza San Carlo, there is a rich and eclectic offering of sights and activities on offer. From the Cattedrale di San Giovanni Battista which houses a shroud said to have enveloped the body of Christ, to the Mercato di Porta Palazzo, the largest open-air market in Europe, with fabulous food stalls and attractive prices.
