Meanwhile, Saint-Saturnin-lès-Apt (7km) is a little further north, a very charming and authentic Luberon village, slightly off the usual tourist track, with beautiful doorways, a handful of bars and restaurants and a Tuesday morning market no doubt showcasing the region's cherries and lavender when in season.

To the south is the town of Apt (3.5km) with excellent restaurants, shops, large supermarkets and the wonderful Saturday morning market, the largest in the region. The bustling market takes over Place de la Bouquerie and its surrounding streets selling seasonal fruit and vegetables, wine, olives, cheese, flowers, lavender, fabrics, crafts, clothes and so much more – it really is a unique experience and a great way to stock up on delicious produce from southern France.

Meanwhile, other iconic Luberon villages to visit include Roussillon (15km), Bonnieux (16km), Gordes (22km) and Ménerbes (24km) or venture south to pretty Lourmarin (22km), so loved by Albert Camus. Discover hiking trails through the hills as well as cycling routes passing spectacular scenery across the Luberon.

Then there's the famous lavender of the Luberon - you will usually pass blooming fields from late June to early August. Admire swathes of lavender around Simiane la Rotonde (24km) and Sault (32km) or take your camera to Sénanque Abbey (27km) when visiting Gordes.
