

Mile End House

Region: London Sleeps: 10

Overview

Step into history at Mile End House, an exquisite Grade II-listed early Georgian home nestled in the heart of Stepney Green's conservation area. Built between 1741 and 1742 and thoughtfully restored with guidance from The Spitalfields Historic Buildings Trust, this 4000+ sq ft residence spans four atmospheric storeys. With five spacious bedrooms, original features, and period details, the home offers an immersive journey through time.

The house's exterior is a picture of charm, with ivy, wisteria, and climbing roses creating a verdant screen. Inside, aged pine floorboards and traditional lime plaster walls tell tales of the past. The reception rooms boast stunning marble fireplaces and double-aspect windows, while the lower-ground floor kitchen, overlooking a serene garden, features reclaimed materials and antique finishes. Mile End House promises a captivating stay in a unique historical setting, offering a truly unforgettable experience for guests.
