

Villa Scana

Region: Liguria Sleeps: 12

Overview

Perched gracefully on the "Hill of the Sun" beneath the ancient watch of Castelnuovo Magra's medieval tower, Villa Scana offers guests a truly enchanting retreat. As you make your way up the winding drive lined with olive trees, a sense of seclusion and romance unfolds, the same sense that inspired a marble entrepreneur in the 1960s to build this charming hideaway as a secret refuge for a forbidden love.

Step inside, and you'll find interiors adorned with Carrara marble, sourced just a few miles away from the villa, which lends the home a unique, elegant character. The five sumptuous suites are thoughtfully furnished, while the living room, bathed in natural light, spills out onto a panoramic terrace overlooking the serene Magra Valley and distant sea beyond.

Outside, the villa is surrounded by a sprawling 5,000-square-metre garden peppered with Mediterranean plants and olive groves. Wander through the multi-level terraces, cool off in the swimming pool, or relax under a pergola with a glass of wine in hand. There's a ping-pong table and table football for fun, plus barbecue facilities and even a private chef service.

Located on the Ligurian-Tuscan border, this charming property serves as a gateway to destinations such as Cinque Terre, Pisa, Lucca, and Portovenere.

Location & Local Information

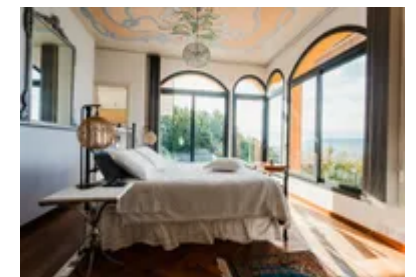

Tucked away on the sun-drenched hillside beneath the medieval tower of Castelnuovo Magra, Villa Scana sits in one of Liguria's most characterful corners, where ancient charm meets natural splendour. This sleepy 12th-century village is laced with cobbled lanes, panoramic viewpoints, and timeworn churches, ideal for a quiet stroll or a cappuccino in the local piazza.

A short drive brings you to golden beaches and quaint fishing harbours along the Ligurian coast, while inland, you'll find vineyards, olive groves, and trails perfect for walking or cycling. Nearby, Luni, once a Roman settlement, boasts archaeological ruins and a small museum that will appeal to history lovers. For daily essentials, there are supermarkets, bakeries, and family-run trattorias in the surrounding area, serving up fresh seafood and regional delicacies.

From olive oil tasting to boat trips along the coastline, the area around Villa Scana offers a delightful blend of culture, nature, and authentic Italian living, all within easy reach.
