

Willow Tree House

Region: East Of England Sleeps: 6

Overview

Willow Tree House is a tranquil haven nestled at the edge of the estate, offering a retreat where nature and history harmoniously intertwine. This charming cottage, once part of Wolterton's old village dating back to 1332, has been lovingly restored to provide a serene escape. Inside, the cosy living room with its open fire is perfect for quiet evenings, while the 18th-century chimneys add a sense of timeless character. The handmade, hand-painted kitchen flows into a dining area, ideal for family meals or relaxed mornings over coffee.

The house features three inviting double bedrooms, with a king size room and a stunning marble wet room on the ground floor. Upstairs, two further spacious bedrooms share a traditional bathroom, complete with a bathtub and rainfall shower.

Outside, a large front garden with herbaceous borders and a rear courtyard garden enclosed by raised beds offers a peaceful spot for outdoor dining around the fire pit. Guests can explore the estate's vast grounds or take a moment to unwind under the graceful willow tree. Just a short walk from the main Hall, Willow Tree House offers both seclusion and access to the grandeur of the estate.
