Location & Local Information

Located in the heart of Galicia's Rías Baixas region, Villa Meloxo sits near the charming coastal town of O Grove, renowned for its fishing heritage, fresh seafood, and laid-back atmosphere. Just steps from the beach and overlooking the traditional port of Meloxo, guests can enjoy the authentic rhythm of local life, from fishermen returning with the day's catch to lively waterfront restaurants serving regional specialties. The property is within walking distance to a local bar and restaurant, both serving delicious local seafood that is caught in the area - you can't miss out!

The O Grove Seafood Festival in Galicia takes place every October and is one of Spain's most famous gastronomic celebrations. For two lively weeks, the coastal town transforms into a paradise for seafood lovers, offering freshly caught mussels, clams, scallops, octopus and more, served in large marquee tents alongside music, culture and entertainment. It's an ideal time to enjoy the flavours of the Rías Baixas and experience the region's vibrant maritime traditions!

In June, Galicia comes alive for San Juan (Noite de San Xoán), a magical midsummer celebration held on the night of 23 June. Beaches across the region glow with bonfires, fireworks and traditional rituals said to bring good luck, while locals gather to enjoy food, music and late-night festivities by the sea. It's a unique, atmospheric event that captures the mysticism and warmth of Galician summer nights.

The villa is ideally positioned for exploring the surrounding coastline. The town of Sanxenxo and the pristine beaches of San Vicente do Mar are just a 20-minute drive away, while the famous island of La Toja, with its thermal spas and golf course, is also close by. Boat trips to the nearby island of Sálvora and scenic walks along the coast offer further opportunities to experience the natural beauty of the area.
