What you should know...

- The two bedrooms are located in a separate building with external access, which may not be ideal for families with very young children.
- Due to the villa's hillside setting and steps between levels, it may not be suitable for guests with limited mobility.
- The seafront access includes stone steps and a decked area that may be slippery when wet; care is needed, especially with children.
- If you are traveling in a larger group check out Villa Thalori, Villa Agalia & Villa Kinonia all on the same complex.
