

Ambra View

Region: Parga Sleeps: 16

Overview

Set within an eight-acre olive grove on Greece's serene west coast, Ambra View offers a tranquil escape with sweeping views over the Ambracian Gulf. Designed for those seeking comfort and connection to nature, this elegant villa spans 380 square metres and accommodates up to sixteen guests across eight en-suite bedrooms.

The interiors combine warmth with understated style, featuring an open-plan living space with inviting sofas, contemporary touches, and a large wooden dining table beside the modern kitchen, ideal for relaxed gatherings and leisurely meals. Two additional bathrooms ensure ease for larger groups.

Outdoors, the expansive five-hundred-square-metre terrace is the villa's centrepiece. An infinity pool mirrors the sea beyond, surrounded by sun loungers, parasols, and shaded areas for reading or quiet reflection. Kayaks await by the shore for those keen to explore, while an al fresco dining area, outdoor bar, and built-in grill set the scene for sunset meals and starlit evenings.

Despite its secluded setting, Ambra View lies within easy reach of Sparto village and the harbour town of Amfilochia, where traditional tavernas and authentic Greek charm await. This is a place where you can truly unwind, where natural beauty and thoughtful design come together for a memorable stay.

Location & Local Information

Ambra View rests quietly on the edge of the Ambracian Gulf, close to the traditional village of Sparto and just beyond the harbour town of Amfilochia. This unspoilt region remains largely untouched by mass tourism, offering an authentic glimpse of Greek life amid olive groves and coastal air.

Sparto is a tranquil hillside village where neighbours greet each other by name and local cafés serve strong coffee and even stronger stories. Its architecture features terracotta rooftops, stone façades, and vivid bougainvilleae. From the villa, a short drive along winding roads brings you to the village centre, where you can pick up essentials or enjoy a leisurely meal at a taverna with views.

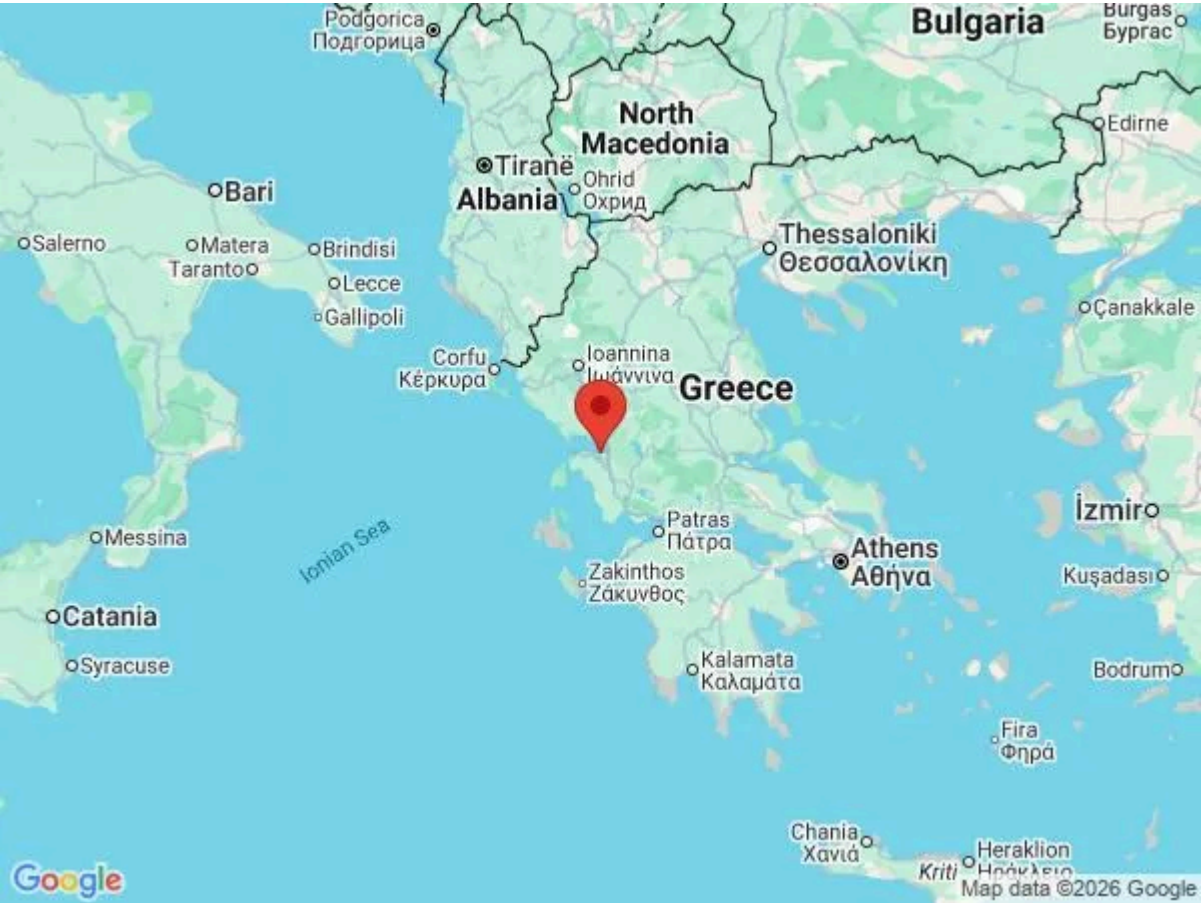

Nearby Amfilochia is livelier, with a pretty seafront promenade, cafés, bakeries, and small shops. Fresh seafood arrives daily from local boats, and you'll also find historic churches, vibrant market stalls, and a few quiet beaches perfect for paddling or snorkelling.

Nature enthusiasts will appreciate the surrounding landscape. The Ambracian Gulf is a protected wetland that attracts a diverse array of birdlife, while inland hills, covered in olive and pine trees, offer scenic drives to hilltop villages and stunning sea views.

Though the pace is relaxed, there are options for exploration, kayaking in the bay, discovering hidden coves, ancient ruins, or even a winery or two tucked into the hills. Ambra View's setting combines peaceful seclusion with authentic Greek charm close at hand.

What we love

- The incredible sea views from every single room – sunrise or sunset, they're mesmerising!
- The 500sqm outdoor terrace with infinity pool, kayaks, and outdoor bar.
- Its peaceful setting amidst olive groves, yet close to charming Sparto and Amfilochia.

What you should know...

- The villa is in a remote area, so having a car is highly recommended for exploring and getting supplies.
- There are multiple levels and open terraces, so supervision is advised for younger children.
- While the nearest beach is accessible, it may be rocky and more suited to snorkelling than sunbathing.
