Loch Lomond Manor

Region: Loch Lomond & The Trossachs Sleeps: 10

Overview

Loch Lomond Manor is a captivating National Monument, built between 1901 and 1902 by the talented husband-and-wife team, Alexander and Maggie. They were key figures in the Glasgow Boys and Glasgow Girls movement, which included painters, architects, and artisans. Their influence is still felt today throughout the house, with stunning artworks and intricate tapestries that adorn the walls, bringing the spirit of their creative community to life.

Perfectly located in the upper part of Helensburgh, Loch Lomond Manor offers a luxurious yet welcoming base for families to explore the beauty of the surrounding area. Whether you're playing a round of golf, walking along the shores of Loch Lomond, or taking day trips to the Highlands, this charming estate provides an ideal starting point for unforgettable adventures. The manor sits in a privileged position with breathtaking views of the Clyde and Argyll, and with the Highland train line just moments away, day trips to Oban, Fort William, or even Glasgow and Edinburgh are within easy reach. Plus, Loch Lomond itself is only a short distance away, perfect for a quick escape to nature.

With its five distinctive turrets and Edwardian charm, Loch Lomond Manor is filled with character and period features. From its grand tapestries to the enormous bathtubs, every corner of the house reflects a bygone era of British architecture. The manor offers a unique combination of formality and warmth, making it an inviting home away from home where you can experience the golden age of Scotland's architectural legacy.

The house comfortably accommodates up to ten guests across six beautifully appointed double bedrooms, each offering a peaceful retreat. The ground floor features spacious entertaining areas where you can unwind after a day of exploration. Play a game of chess in the elegant drawing room or gather for a meal in the dining room to reflect on the day's highlights. Outside, the extensive gardens and tree swing make it a fantastic place for families, while the kitchen garden Hut provides a charming spot for tea. Loch Lomond Manor is the perfect blend of luxury, history, and family-friendly fun.

What we love

- As featured on Great British Railway series with Michael Portillo.
- Day trips here are exceptional and the walking trails even better.
- The sea and beaches are only a few miles away and can be seen from the house!
- The house is very original from the ones surrounding it, giving the impression of entering a parallel world, as if you were going back in time, to the start of the 19th century.
- The garden offers a range of possibilities! BBQs, dining on the terrace with a refreshing breeze and enjoying the sun when it comes out.
- This is a dream property for art history and architecture enthusiasts. It's recognised as a National Monuments of Scotland house, and is situated just 500 metres from Charles Rennie Mackintosh's famous Hill House.

What you should know...

- Situated at the start of the highland train line it's possible to take day trips to Oban and Fort William.
- The house contains some of the largest bath tubs you will ever see!
