Chateau Quercy

Region: Midi-Pyrenees Sleeps: 15

Overview

Château Quercy, a beautiful 19th century château in the southern Quercy region of the Midi-Pyrenees, is the ideal spot for your large family holiday or special event. Having recently undergone extensive refurbishment, this château offers spacious accommodation in extensive grounds with woodland walks through ancient cedars. Enjoy a billiards room, private swimming pool, fenced tennis court and terrace for outdoor dining.

The château sleeps 15 guests across seven bedrooms with traditional furniture and six stunning modern bathrooms, mostly en-suite. The expansive contemporary kitchen is fitted to a high standard, and the dining room's extendable table will seat everyone for evening meals together. The two salons include one with satellite TV and DVD player, another with a beautiful 17th century carved fireplace. The home's highlight is the first floor 'couloir du château' with chandeliers, a picture gallery and grand piano.

This gorgeous French château is 500m from a picturesque 13th century fortified village, where you can walk the stone arcades, then visit a boulangerie and cafe-bar serving meals.

A short drive away, you'll find Moissac, which has a beautiful abbey and an extension of the Canal du Midi, and Montcuq with its lively Sunday morning market. A little further afield, try prunes steeped in Armagnac in Agen, admire the beauty of the Lot valley near Pujols or spend the day in Toulouse, also known as La Ville Rose with its striking pink-hued architecture.

Location & Local Information

Tucked away in south-west France, the Quercy region is a beguiling tapestry of medieval villages, rolling vineyards, and beautiful valleys. This quietly captivating corner of France is perfect for those seeking cultural richness, natural beauty, and a truly authentic French escape.

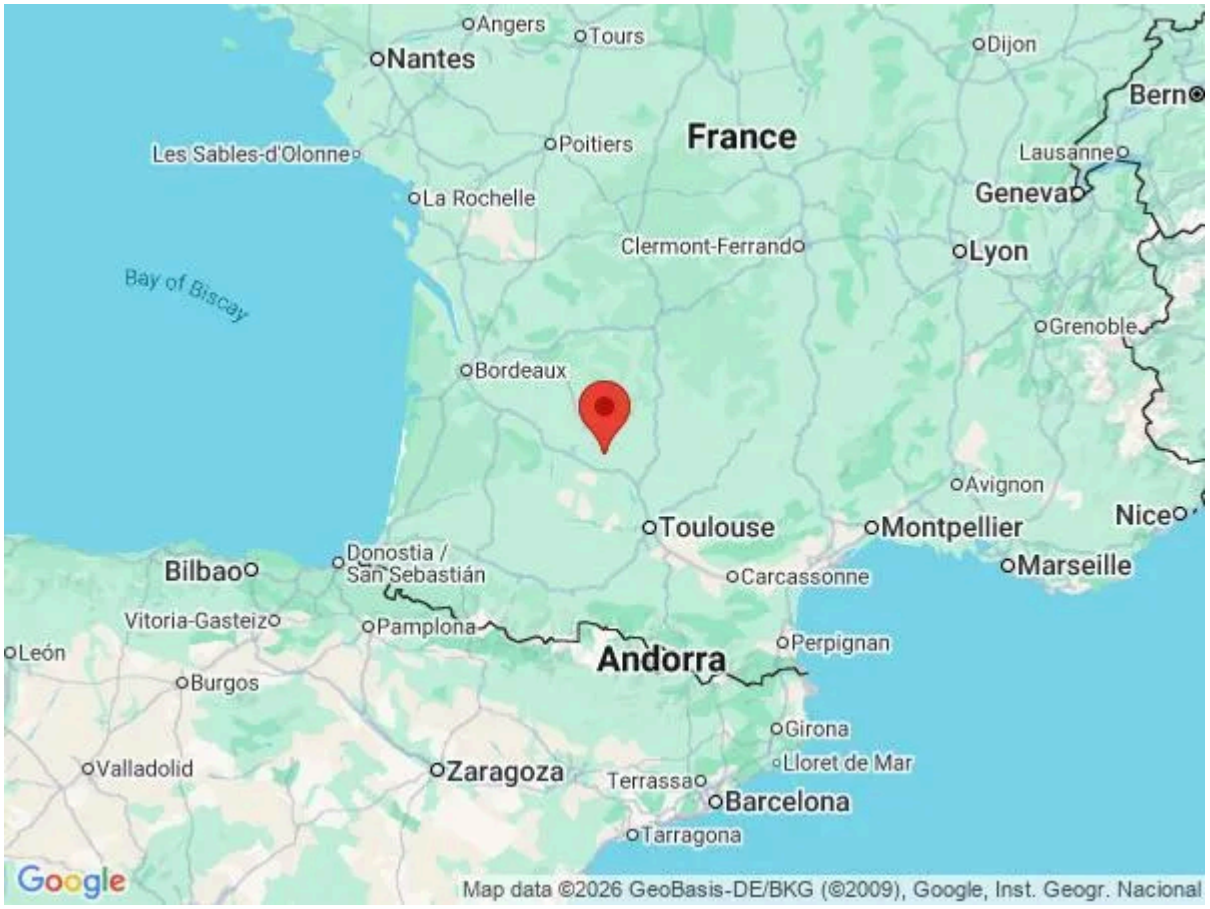

Château Quercy is set in its own beautiful gardens just 500m from a small historic village with a charming square, boulangerie and café-bar serving meals. Supermarkets and other amenities can be found in the 13th century town of Valence D'Agen (13km) with its arcaded market hall – don't miss the Tuesday morning market. Soak up the beauty of the Canal du Midi, the perfect spot for walking and cycling.

Also by the Canal du Midi is Moissac (18km), where the UNESCO-listed Abbey of Saint-Pierre stuns with its exquisite Romanesque cloisters and serene atmosphere. A little further afield, Montcuq (33km) delights with its lively Sunday market and medieval donjon, all set against a backdrop of sunflower fields and patchwork countryside.

Venture west to Agen (30km), famed for its succulent prunes, bustling market halls, and vibrant half-timbered architecture, located by the Garonne River. Heading north instead, Penne-d'Agenais (35km) rises above the Lot River like a hilltop dream, with its domed basilica and artists' studios. Pair it with a visit to Pujols (40km), officially one of France's "Plus Beaux Villages", where colourful shutters and floral lanes offer the perfect postcard scene. Villeneuve-sur-Lot (42km), meanwhile, brings a splash of urban charm with riverside cafés and a 13th-century bridge spanning the Lot.

For day trips, Cahors (58km) enchants with its medieval bridge, cloisters, and famed Malbec wines, while Toulouse (88km), the "Pink City", dazzles with its dynamic culture, Renaissance mansions, and vibrant markets.

The nearest airports are Toulouse-Blagnac Airport (90km) and Bergerac (98km) or arrive by train with TGV arrivals from Paris in both Agen (30km) and Montauban (47km) - a car is definitely needed to be able to explore the region.
