Location & Local Information

The small fishing village of Seget Donji is located 2km from the historic town of Trogir, nestled between the crystal clear Adriatic and the lush mountains, on the beautiful Dalmatian coast.

While under Venetian rule (1420 till 1797) Trogir, known as Trau, was rich with Renaissance artwork and had a thriving economy. Trau, therefore, was noted as being one of the more prominent cities in the Balkans.

With historical sites in abundance and the old town itself set within a medieval castle, you'll love to stroll around the quaint little streets here, stumbling upon architecture from the middle ages to the Renaissance period.

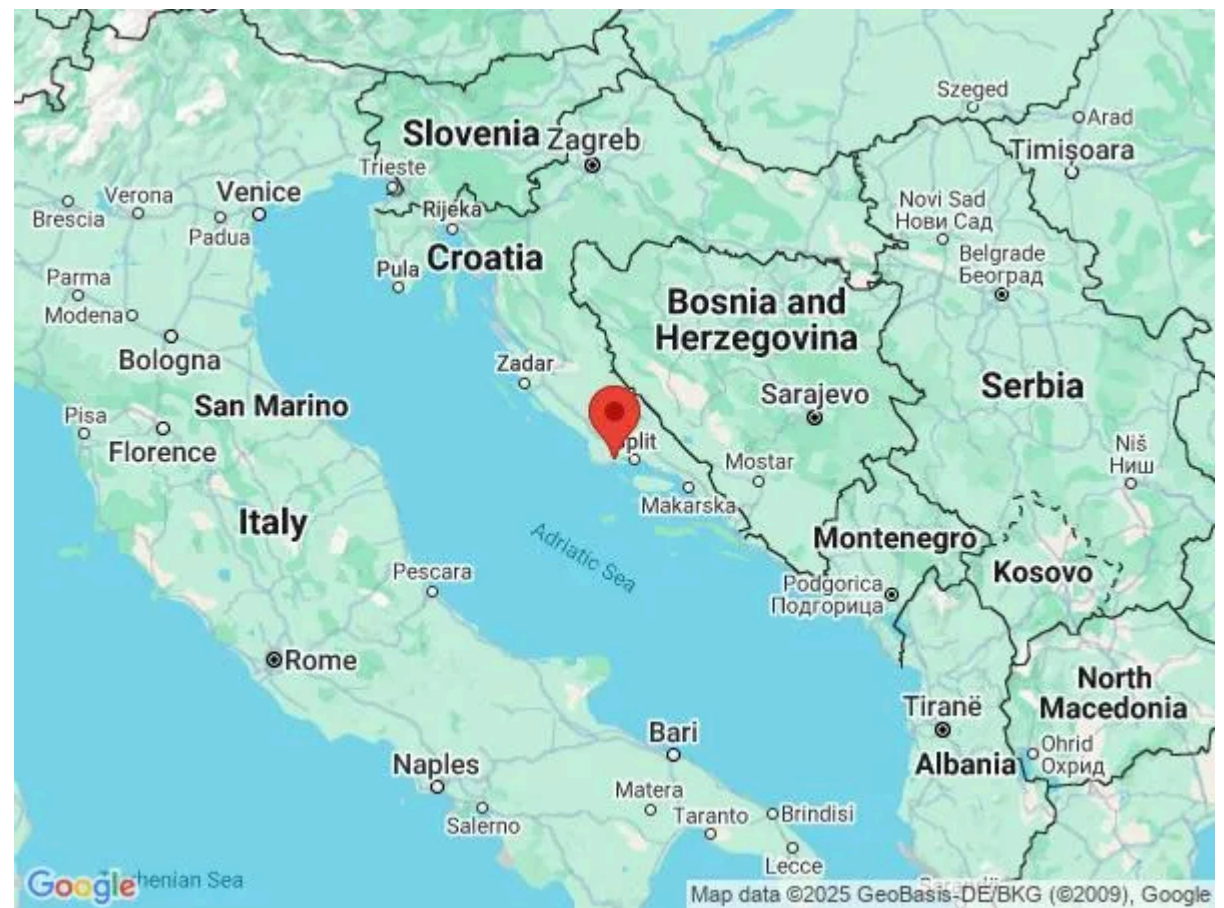

With many diverse restaurants to dine out in and a lovely promenade where you can find some vibrant nightlife, you'll not be left short of options in the evenings.

Seget Donji is a great place to bring your family, with a range of lovely pebble beaches benefiting from clear shallow waters, perfect for little ones. And along the promenade and in a luxury hotel complex, you'll also find a variety of sporting activities for big and small kids alike.

Just a few minutes' drives from Seget Donji will find you in the beautiful coastal town of Trogir, set within medieval walls on a tiny island, linked by a bridge to the mainland. A UNESCO World Heritage site and home to many fascinating historical sights, this charming little town is packed full of character.

Be sure to enjoy long summer evenings along the wide seaside promenade, lined with bars, cafes and yachts. And if you're after a day trip a little further afield head to Croatia's second largest city, Split.

Also, a UNESCO town, this heady mix of tradition and modernity, set within ancient atmospheric walls, is still thriving after a thousand years, so don't miss a great day out here.
