Location & Local Information

Pastida is a quiet little village located slightly inland on the west coast of Rhodes, and is shadowed by the mountain of Filerimos. In Latin, the name of the village means "castle". It is a part of the municipal unit of Petaloudes. Known for its authenticity and traditional character, the village consists of whitewashed houses, paved alleys and a picturesque village square. Life revolves around the handful of family-run tavernas that line the square, surrounded by photo ready olive groves and citrus trees. The pace of life here is relaxed and leisurely; the locals are friendly and accommodating, and the food is authentic and delicious.

For beach lovers, the buzzing town of Kremasti is just a short drive away. The beach is a long, broad stretch of sand and shingle, with crystal clear waters that are perfect for snorkelling. You can hire sun loungers and umbrellas, and there are a few tavernas and beach bars dotted along the waterfront. If guests are after a more lively nightlife, the town of Faliraki is a twenty-minute drive away from Pastida. For those wanting some peace and quiet, the secluded sandy cove at Kalithea is twenty-five minutes' drive away.

Guests can also take a day trip to Rhodes Town, just a twenty-minute drive away, where they can visit the famous 14th-century Palace of the Grand Masters. This huge castle has two tall towers and is just around the corner from the Street of the Knights, former home of the Medieval knights that once ruled the city. And the Archaeological Museum here is housed in the Knights' grand old hospital. Nowadays, you can browse the ancient ruins that have been found in the city over the years.

Those staying in Pastida will enjoy a taste of village life away from the hustle and bustle of nearby Kremasti, Kalithea and Rhodes Town. The village provides an idyllic destination, while maintaining close proximity to the busy and lively towns nearby for anyone looking for a change of pace. Also located just fifteen minutes from the airport,

Pastida provides the perfect middle ground to suit everybody's needs.
