Location & Local Information

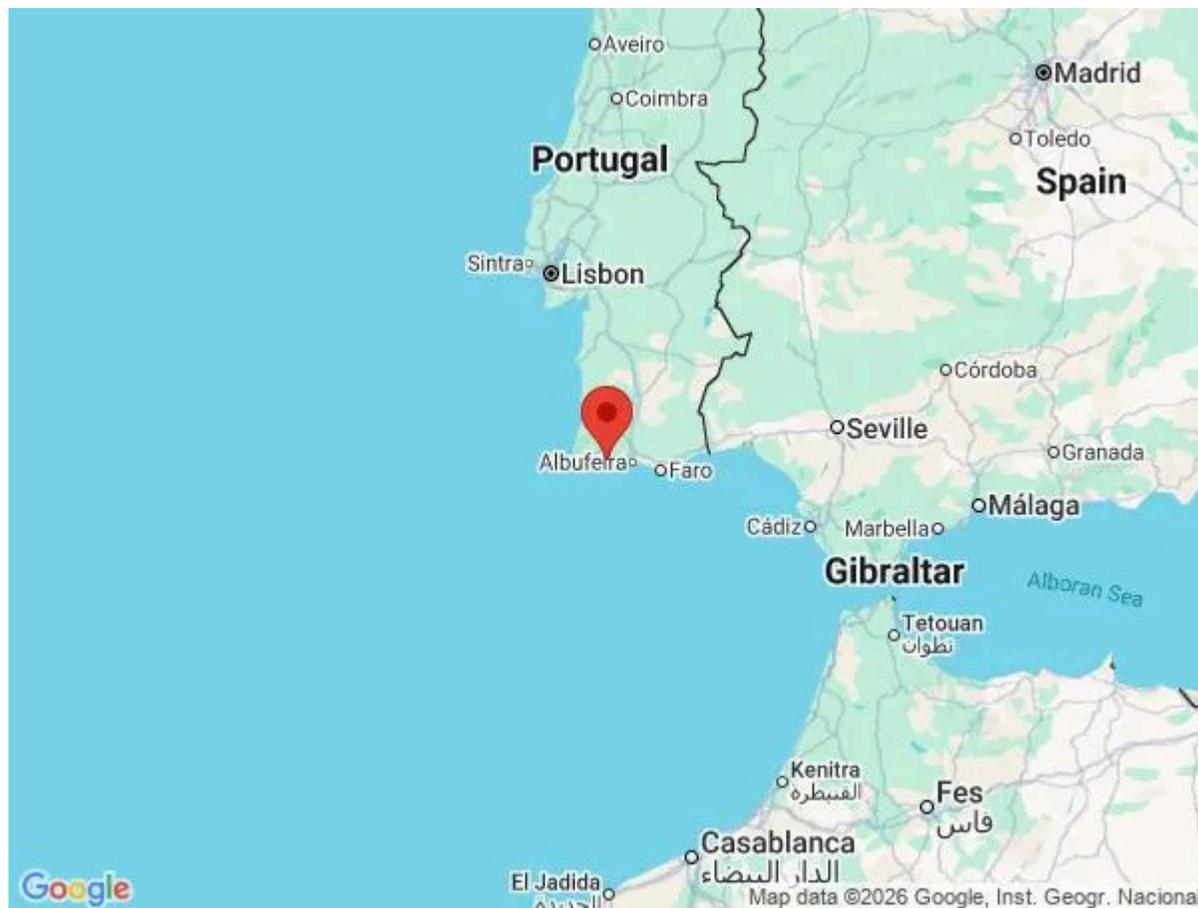

Located in the western part of the Algarve and a 70 km drive from Faro Airport lies the coastal village of Ferragudo; this charming, former fishing village is fast becoming one of the Algarve's new holiday hot spots. The villa's grounds slope down to a sandy beach with private steps leading down to the beach, providing instant access to the sought-after Praia Grande beach.

Throughout the village there are attractive traditionally styled fisherman homes, all nestled in a comfortable tumble towards the river down the hillside. The villa's grounds slope down to a sandy beach with private steps leading down to the beach. The village square is home to the main bustle of Ferragudo that boasts many restaurants and cafés, all serving fantastic local fare, showcasing the catch of the day. Around the corner from the square is the main quay, which is overflowing with restaurants filling the air with the most alluring food aromas.

The charm of Ferragudo is prevalent throughout. The village itself is framed by raw nature and a beautiful coastline, with everything guests might need on-hand such as banks, post office, and supermarkets. From here it not only leads back to Areia, but also to neighbouring villages where there is much more to explore! Venturing out locally, you can enjoy the coast from the Atlantic sea and with regular boat excursions taking place from Portimão's harbour you can visit the century-old caves. Going inland you will find the Monchique and Foia mountains with its highest point standing at more than nine hundred meters high.

You can also find fantastic golf courses, equitation centres, tennis courts and water parks in nearby proximity. While Zoomarine Albufeira, water park being the furthest away of twenty -three kilometres, you can find boat hire, and a variety of water sports are available within a few kilometres.
