Location & Local Information

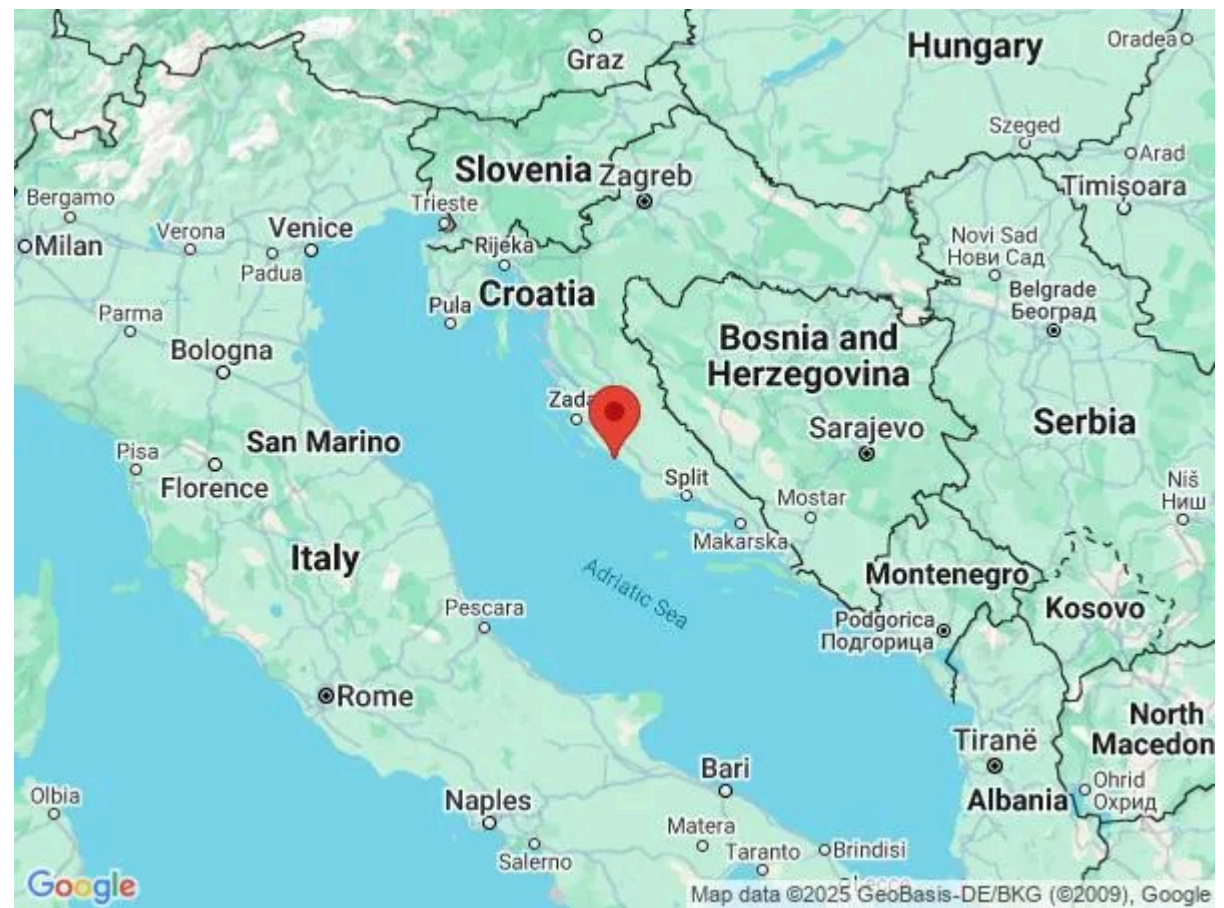

Tisno is named after the narrow passage that separates the island of Murter from the mainland. A town with rich heritage displayed in its Italian style buildings, Tisno is a pleasant option if you just want to get away from the madness of the city destinations we've come to know and love. There are only 3 hotels in the heart of the town, making it an authentic destination undiluted by tourism.

There are many beautiful beaches in this area, The most famous being the pebble beach Jazine. Jazine beach is sandy and the sea is shallow and warm which is ideal for families with small children. Given that the beach is within a military camp, visitors have at their disposal a large selection of additional activities including beach volleyball, mini golf and table tennis. The bay here offers a restaurant where you can refresh yourself on hot summer days. The beach is equipped with showers, toilets, and there is a possibility to rent chairs and umbrellas. Near the beach a parking area is available at an extra charge.

To spoil yourself with local delicacies, there are several taverns and restaurants offering traditional dalmatian dishes prepared in a traditional way. Among the most famous restaurants, one worth visiting is tavern Broscica which is decorated with a real Dalmatian touch. If you are looking for a good seafood restaurant then restaurant Feral is the place to go.

If you fancy immersing yourself in Croatia's natural beauty, Kornati National Park is definitely the place to visit and is located near the island of Murter. If you like historic sights then you should definitely visit Sinbinek the oldest Croatian town on the Adriatic coast. For lovers of natural beauty, near Tisno is Krka national park which offers breathtaking views leaving its visitors in awe.

For those scouting out the night life, The Garden which was the home to The Garden Festival between 2012 and 2015 is now the base for many house and disco-orientated festivals. Formerly a holiday camp for the Croatian military, The Garden sits adjacent to the small fishing village of Tisno. The main site sits on a bay that, conveniently, helps insulate the surrounding area from noise pollution. The boat parties here sail through the idyllic Dalmatian coastal scenery and are usually a raucous affair.
